S e han cumplido más de 50 años desde que las manos de Eladio Muela dieran forma a su primera navaja; una pieza artesana inicio de una larga saga que, con el tiempo, habría de convertirse en cientos de modelos que harían famoso su emblema y su apellido en los cinco continentes.

No pasó mucho tiempo hasta que su pequeño taller hubo de trasladarse para convertirse en fábrica, a la vez que la demanda de los cuchillos Muela se hacia cada vez más numerosa e internacional.

Con el paso de los años el catálogo de Manufacturas Muela ha ido creciendo en diseños y opciones, a la vez que su presencia en las principales ferias nacionales y extranjeras, sirvieron para acrecentar la importancia y proyección de una marca que demostraba de forma innegable su consolidación e importancia.

Hoy, Manufacturas Muela cuenta con unas modernas instalaciones técnicas, industriales y comerciales, capaces de atender los importantes pedidos que llegan desde todo el mundo. No obstante, una notable parcela de su producción queda destinada a piezas en las que el toque artesano continúa poniendo de manifiesto su apreciada diferencia respecto a otros fabricantes.

Muela® EL GRAN DUQUE 1994

More than 50 years ago Eladio Muela handcrafted his first knife. It was undoubtedly a fine piece of craftsmanship that was the beginning of a saga that would bring about a company offering hundreds of models that were to make his logo and name famous around the world.

The first knife Eladio manufactured soon convinced many collectors to obtain more of his models. Times were difficult, he worked without the help of industrial processes to make his work easier, but they also served to demonstrate this self-taught craftsman's abilities and tenacity. They also confirmed the growing acceptance his knives enjoyed, the quality of the materials he used and the finishing he gave to all his products. The latter was always the most important aspect of all his products.

It was not long before the small workshop had to be moved and become a factory as demand for Muela's knives grew and orders began to be received from abroad.

As the years passed, Manufacturas Muela's catalogue of products grew in the number of designs and options. At the same time, the company's presence in shows and fairs both in Spain and abroad helped to increase the importance and international renown of a brand that was beginning to consolidate its position in the market.

Today Manufacturas Muela has modern technical, industrial and sales installations. The company is equipped to serve large order that come from around the world. Nevertheless, a part of the company's production is still dedicated to pieces whose craftsmanship sets them aside from the products produced by other manufacturers.

La producción actual de Manufacturas Muela se cifra en unas 350.000 piezas al año. Una vez elegidas las coladas de metal para los diferentes modelos, generalmente acero martensítico de alta calidad aleado al cromo vanadio molibdeno, los procesos necesarios para la obtención de cada pieza se llevan a cabo en la propia fábrica. Desde el corte de las planchas, los mecanizados previstos en cada hoja, rectificados y tratamientos térmicos o superficiales son ejecutados en modernas máquinas, muchas asistidas por tecnología computerizada y controladas por personal técnico especializado. Numerosos modelos Muela cuentan con el atractivo complemento del asta de ciervo en sus mangos, material que también es seleccionado, preparado y ajustado en sus propias instalaciones. La fábrica cuenta con un departamento de guarnicionería, donde se diseñan, cortan, cosen y rematan las pieles que se convierten en las fundas que acompañan a los distintos modelos.

Manufacturas Muela se enorgullece de conservar en la elaboración de muchos de sus cuchillos un alto componente artesano, recurriendo a la ancestral lima y al buen hacer de las manos expertas para conseguir modelos de calidad excepcional. En los cuchillos de lujo, producidos en series limitadas y numeradas, se incluyen guarniciones en metales nobles, siendo piezas ejecutadas por los mejores orfebres. En ellas se montan cachas o mangos elaborados con asta de ciervo seleccionada o maderas exóticas, más difíciles de trabajar que las habituales, pero cuyo resultado bien compensa el esfuerzo y mayor coste.

Current production volume amounts to around 350,000 pieces a year. Once the metals (mainly high-quality martesitic steel alloyed with chrome, vanadium and molybdenum) are chosen from the foundry depending on the different models, all the main processes needed to produce each knife are carried out in the factory. Modern machines execute steps ranging from the cutting of metal sheets, the different mechanised steps foreseen in the knives' design, grinding, polishing as well as the different heat and finishing treatments. Many of these are assisted by computerised technology and controlled by highly qualified staff.

Many Muela models have the attractive accessory of deer horn handles. This material is also selected, prepared and adjusted at our own premises. The factory also has a trimmings department where the skins that are later to become the knife cases that come with the different models are cut, sewn and finished.

Once the manufacturing process is finished and the different quality control checks passed, the pieces go the department in charge of finishing the knives. There they are marked with their distinctive name and the Manufacturas Muela logo. Finally, they are individually packaged and go to the warehouse to be packaged in sets to go to our customers.

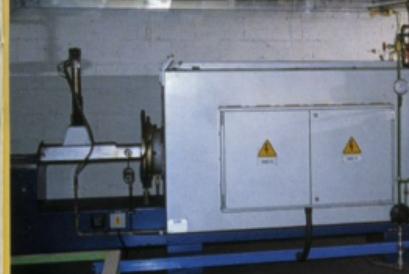

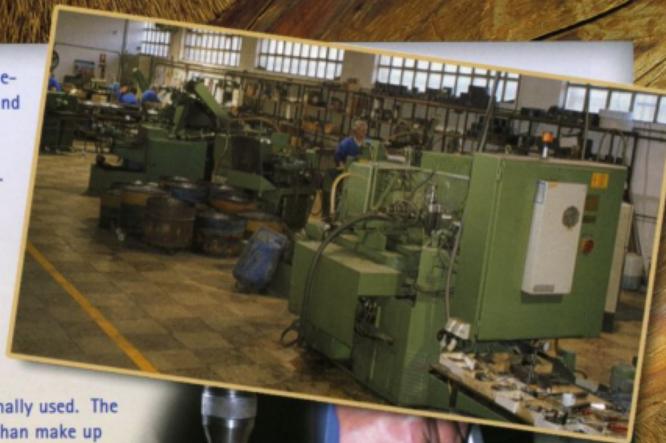

Despite the production advantages provided by modern technology, Manufacturas Muela prides itself in conserving a high level of craftsmanship in many of the knives it produces. The traditional file and the experience of our craftsmen's hands are used to produce models of an exceptionally high quality.

This obviously is more important for luxury knives, which are normally produced in limited and numbered series. They are also embellished with trimmings and decorations made from silver. The best silversmiths make these accessories. Likewise these models are made with handles made from the most select deer horn or valuable or exotic woods. The latter tend to be more difficult to work than the woods that are normally used. The results, however, more than make up for the greater efforts and costs involved.
